The 2024 White House race is going to the dogs as “The Daily Show” teams up with a voter registration organization to “encourage fans to rescue dogs and democracy.”

The Comedy Central show announced Monday that it’s partnering with animal rescue nonprofit Animal Haven and HeadCount to launch “InDogCision 2024: Rescuing Democracy.”

The effort, a play on the show’s “Indecision 2024” coverage, will include an event in New York City — as well as this summer’s Republican National Convention in Milwaukee and the Democratic National Convention in Chicago — that will feature “pet adoptions, free

The first of the canine calls to action, which is described as a way to bring voter registration and animal adoption together, will be held on Friday at a kickoff event at Animal Haven's headquarters in Manhattan. The pup-filled campaign will then hit the road with voter engagement opportunities at adoption centers in cities across the country, according to Comedy Central.

Jon Stewart, who handles Monday night hosting duties on "The Daily Show," tearfully paid tribute to his dog, Dipper, in a February segment on the show a day after his four-legged family member died.

"In a world of good boys, he was the best," Stewart told viewers of Dipper, which he had adopted from Animal Haven.

"Boy, my wish for you is that one day you find that dog, that one dog. It's just the best," Stewart said.

If you think elections in America have gone to the dogs, you have company.

On the eve of the 2024 Republican National Convention in Milwaukee, Comedy Central is hosting "InDogCision 2024: Rescuing Democracy," a voter registration/pet adoption event in Cathedral Square Park on July 14 from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The free event — designed "to encourage fans to rescue dogs and democracy" — includes giveaways, "doggie swag," pet adoptions, voter registration opportunities, a meet-and-greet with members of the "Daily Show" team and more.

"InDogCision 2024" is being co-hosted with HeadCount, a voter registration organization, and Milwaukee Area Domestic Animal Control Commission (MADACC).

Comedy Central and "The Daily Show" had a similar event in New York City in June, and plans to hold another in Chicago Aug. 18, the day before the start of the Democratic National Convention in the Windy City.

The Daily Show made impressive strides this weekend in its dual effort to save both democracy and dogs.

The show held a dog adoption event, The Daily Show Presents: InDogCision 2024: Rescuing Democracy, in Chicago on Sunday where fans had the chance to meet several correspondents and a whole lot of pooches searching for their forever homes.

Held in collaboration with rescue organization PAWS Chicago, InDogCision gave attendees the chance to meet adoptable dogs, and register to vote via HeadCount.

The result was more than 250 new voter registrations and “multiple in-progress adoptions.”

The event also featured meet-and-greet appearances with several of The Daily Show's correspondents, including Desi Lydic, Jordan Klepper, Ronny Chieng, and Troy Iwata. The event, which was held at Chicago's Gallagher Way, coincided with a Cubs game at the adjacent Wrigley Field—making for a maximum amount of foot traffic.

Attendees were also able to enter to win a trip for two to New York City for a taping of The Daily Show, complete with a “backstage experience” plus airfare and hotel accommodations. (People can still enter that sweepstakes online by encouraging their friends to register to vote.)

The first event will take place Friday, June 21, at Animal Haven. But if you're not New York based, don't worry: InDogCision will be going on the road, partnering with different animal welfare organizations at each location.

The next stop will be in Milwaukee at the Republican National Convention on July 14, where they'll partner with the Milwaukee Area Domestic Animal Control Commission. The last stop is Chicago at the Democratic National Convention, in partnership with PAWS Chicago. The Daily Show will be filming coverage from the RNC and DNC, and each DogCision event promises special guest appearances.

To participate in the New York event taking place Friday from 2 to 6 p.m., RSVP on the Animal Haven website (all attendees must RSVP separately).

The Daily Show* Wants to Save Democracy —and Dogs

The Daily Show is on a mission to rescue two things at once: democracy and dogs.

On Monday, the Comedy Central series announced a new initiative: InDogCision 2024: Rescuing Democracy.

Building on the series' "Indecision 2024" coverage of the upcoming 2024 presidential election, the show will partner with animal rescue organizations nationwide to host joint voter registration/dog adoption events.

The campaign will kick off in New York City on Friday, June 21. There, the show is partnering with voter registration organization HeadCount and rescue group Animal Haven. The event will feature "pet adoptions, free giveaways, doggie swag, dog photoshoots, voter registration opportunities, special guests, and more," according to a press release from Comedy Central.

The Daily Show has a long history of championing dogs. Employees' pets are welcome guests in the show's offices, as evidenced by the popular Daily Show Dogs Instagram account.

Jon Stewart's own passion for animals is well-known. Together with his wife Tracey, the Stewarts run the Hockhockson Farm Foundation in New Jersey, a nonprofit organization "dedicated to promoting healthy, sustainable, and kind living."

On February 26, just two weeks after his return to host The Daily Show's Monday night episodes, the comedian's love for his own pets was made clear in an emotional moment that has since gone viral. The host took time at the end of the show to tearfully memorialize his dog Dipper, a three-legged brindle pit bull who he rescued from Animal Haven, which led viewers to flood the organization with donations.

After New York, InDogCision will hit Milwaukee and Chicago, where The Daily Show will be on the road covering the Republican and Democratic National Conventions, respectively. Its Milwaukee event will be held on Sunday, July 14, in partnership with the Milwaukee Area Domestic Animal Control Commission; in Chicago, TDS will team up with PAWS Chicago on Sunday, August 18.

According to the press release, InDogCision 2024 "will then hit the road with HeadCount and bring voter engagement opportunities to several adoption centers in cities across America."

RSVPs for the New York City event at Animal Haven are open now. The event will take place from 2pm to 6pm ET at Animal Haven.

If you register to vote in this election, you might also go home with your new best friend, thanks to “The Daily Show.” The Comedy Central program is launching a new initiative called “InDogCision 2024: Rescuing Democracy” this month, hoping to get voters to the polls and some animals adopted.

Partnering with voter registration organization HeadCount and various animal rescues across the country, “The Daily Show” will host a series of events in an effort to encourage fans to rescue dogs and democracy. At each event — one in New York, Milwaukee and Chicago — fans will be able to meet sweet fur babies up for adoption, and while there, get registered to vote in 2024.

It will begin on Friday, June 21 at Animal Haven in New York, before going on the road. The next stop will be the RNC in Milwaukee on July 14, in partnership with the Milwaukee Area Domestic Animal Control Commission, followed by the DNC in Chicago on August 18. There, they’ll work with PAWS Chicago.

In addition to being able to register to vote and adopt animals, the three events will include free giveaways, doggie swag, dog photoshoots, special guests and more.

Jon Stewart to Host Live 'Daily Show' Presidential Debate Specials

It should perhaps come as no surprise that the show is working to get animals adopted, considering host Jon Stewart's own love of dogs. Back in February, he sadly lost his own dog, Dipper, who he rescued from Animal Haven in New York. Remembering the pup on the show, Stewart struggled to hold back his tears, remembering how the animal came to "The Daily Show" tapings with him every day.

"InDogCision 2024" is, of course, a play on "The Daily Show's" ongoing "Indecision 2024" coverage of the election. The events will be held in addition to the late night show having a full week of shows from the RNC in Milwaukee (July 15-18) and the DNC in Chicago (August 19-22).

"The Daily Show" airs weeknights at 11:00 p.m. ET/PT on Comedy Central.
